The Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) is an international association of education advancement officers. Members include alumni administrators, fund raisers, public relations managers, publications editors, and government relations officers. CASE's purpose is to help its members advance the cause of education. It does this by offering them information resources and training opportunities.

To contact CASE, call 202-387-4973, go to its web site (www.case.org) or write to:
